BACHELOR IN SOCIOLOGY
Semester V
(For the Session 2026, 2027 & 2028)

Course Code: UMJDST- 511 Course Title: Fundamental Sociology
Credits: 04 Maximum Marks: 100
Contact Hours: 60 Internal Evaluation: 40
External Evaluation: 60

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course introduces students to sociology as a systematic and scientific study of society, social relationships, social processes and institutions. It provides an understanding of the meaning, nature, scope, emergence and development of sociology and its relationship with other social sciences. The course familiarises students with major sociological perspectives, including functionalism, conflict and interactionism, along with basic concepts such as society, community, association, social groups, status, role and culture. It examines the changing nature of family and marriage in the Indian context and explores contemporary social transformations associated with urbanisation, globalisation, digitalisation, technological change, changing identities and social relationships. Through experiential activities, observation, case studies, field visits, cultural documentation and basic empirical exercises, the course enables students to apply sociological concepts and perspectives to understand contemporary social realities.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

1. Introduce students to sociology as a systematic and scientific study of society, social relationships and social processes.
2. Develop an understanding of the nature, scope, emergence and development of sociology and its relationship with other social sciences.
3. Familiarise students with fundamental sociological concepts such as society, community, association, social groups, status, role and culture.
4. Develop an understanding of social institutions, particularly family and marriage, with reference to changing Indian society.
5. Enable students to examine contemporary social transformations, including technological and digital change, changing identities, social relationships and emerging forms of social organisation.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course introduces students to the emergence, intellectual foundations and development of classical sociological thought. It explains the major concepts, theories and methodological approaches developed by classical sociological thinkers, enables students to critically compare different sociological explanations of social order, social change, inequality and social transformation. It also enables students to develop ability to apply sociological concepts to contemporary social issues and everyday social experiences. It further encourages critical, evidence-based and comparative understanding of social institutions, social relationships and processes of social change.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course, the students will be able to:

1. Explain the historical and intellectual circumstances that contributed to the emergence of sociology as a discipline.
2. Describe and interpret the major concepts and theoretical contributions of Comte, Spencer, Durkheim and Marx.
3. Compare different classical explanations of social order, social change, solidarity, conflict, inequality and social transformation.
4. Apply classical sociological concepts to analyse selected contemporary social issues and institutions.
5. Demonstrate basic sociological skills through observation, case analysis, group discussion, presentation and interpretation of social data/examples.

COURSE OUTCOMES (COs)

Students will be able to:

CO 1. Explain the historical and intellectual foundations of classical sociological thought and identify the major contributions of classical sociological thinkers.

CO 2. Describe and critically examine the key concepts and theoretical contributions of Karl Marx, including class, class conflict, capitalism, alienation and historical materialism.

CO 3. Explain and analyse Emile Durkheim's major sociological concepts, including social facts, division of labour, mechanical and organic solidarity, anomie and suicide.

Recommended Guidelines for DYD Internship – Sociology

1. Purpose of the Internship

The internship is designed to provide students with first-hand exposure to social institutions, communities, organizations, social relationships, inequalities, and contemporary social issues.

The emphasis should be on:

- Experiential and field-based learning
- Systematic social observation
- Understanding social diversity and individual differences
- Developing communication and interpersonal skills
- Connecting classroom concepts with real-life situations
- Understanding community and institutional functioning
- Developing sensitivity towards social issues
- Reflecting on personal and professional learning

2. Duration and Attendance

- The internship will normally be completed over 6 weeks.
- Students must complete the prescribed internship hours/days.
- Daily attendance and punctuality are mandatory.
- Leave should be taken with prior permission.
- Students should maintain a Daily Internship Logbook.
- Attendance and active participation will form part of the evaluation.

3. Orientation Before Internship

The Faculty Mentor should orient students regarding:

- Nature and objectives of the host organization/community.
- Roles and responsibilities of different professionals.
- Sociological methods of observation and fieldwork.
- Ethical practices in field research.
- Confidentiality, privacy and informed consent.
- Appropriate communication and professional behaviour.
- Safety and responsible conduct during field visits.

4. Student Code of Conduct

Students MUST:

- Be punctual, respectful and professionally dressed.
- Follow the rules of the host organization.
- Communicate respectfully with individuals and communities.
- Maintain confidentiality and privacy.
- Record observations objectively.
- Avoid discrimination and stereotyping.
- Seek guidance from the supervisor when required.

Students MUST NOT:

- Misrepresent themselves or the purpose of their internship.
- Record or publish information without permission.
- Take photographs/videos without consent.
- Disclose confidential personal information.
- Make insensitive or derogatory comments about individuals or communities.
- Conduct research/interviews without appropriate permission.
- Present personal opinions as sociological findings.

5. Areas of Sociological Observation

Students may observe and study:

- Family and kinship
- Education and educational institutions
- Community life
- Gender relations
- Social stratification and inequality
- Caste and class
- Youth and children
- Work and occupations
- Migration and urbanization
- Rural and urban communities
- Culture, traditions and social change
- Health and social well-being
- Disability and inclusion
- NGOs and community organizations
- Digital society and social media
- Contemporary social issues

6. Fieldwork and Participation

Under supervision, students may participate in:

- Community visits
- Surveys and interviews
- Focus group discussions
- Awareness programmes
- Social campaigns
- Community development activities
- NGO activities
- Educational/community outreach programmes
- Documentation and data collection
- Social mapping and observation exercises

Students should not independently undertake sensitive research or make claims beyond the evidence collected.

7. Daily Internship Logbook

Students should maintain a daily record containing:

Component	Details
Date & Hours	Internship duration
Activities	Activities undertaken/observed
Field Observations	Important social observations
Interaction	People/groups/institutions interacted with
Sociological Concepts	Concepts related to the experience
Learning	Key learning from the day
Challenges	Problems encountered
Reflection	Personal and academic reflection
Supervisor's Signature	Verification

8. Linking Internship with Sociology

Students should connect field experiences with concepts such as:

- Socialization
- Culture and society
- Social institutions
- Social stratification
- Gender
- Caste and class
- Social change
- Community and development
- Deviance and social control
- Globalization
- Urbanization and migration
- Social movements
- Research methods

Students should explain how a sociological concept is reflected in their field experience, rather than merely naming the concept.

9. Reflective Journal

Students should reflect on:

- What did I observe?
- What did I learn about society?
- Which sociological concept does this experience illustrate?
- Did the experience challenge any of my assumptions?
- What social issues became visible to me?
- What could I have done differently?

10. Role of the Faculty Mentor

The Faculty Mentor should:

- Conduct pre-internship orientation.
- Coordinate with the host organization.
- Monitor attendance and student progress.
- Review logbooks and fieldwork periodically.
- Guide students regarding ethical field practices.
- Encourage reflection and application of sociological concepts.
- Evaluate the internship report and presentation/viva.

11. Assessment

Evaluation may be based on:

- Attendance and participation
- Daily logbook
- Fieldwork activities
- Reflective journal
- Internship report
- Understanding and application of sociological concepts
- Presentation/viva
- Professional conduct
